The Local Market

As I’m sure you’ve noticed, the real estate market is a frequent topic in the media. In fact, it’s difficult to open a newspaper, or visit a news website, and not see stories and opinion pieces about it.

There’s no doubt that the real estate scene can seem bewildering, even to those in the industry!

However, there is good news.

It’s the local real estate scene that impacts you the most. And, that market is much easier to understand and predict.

For example, if you were to call me today, I could probably give you a good idea of what your property would sell for in today’s market fairly quickly. In addition, if you were interested in buying a home in a particular neighbourhood, I could give you a clear sense of how much properties are selling for in that area and the opportunities available.

So, if you ever have questions about the local market, please don’t hesitate to contact me.
